

Lindgren resigns—council agrees

Ronald Lindgren

LIVERMORE — Appearing teary-eyed at a press conference at city hall yesterday, City Manager Bill Parness and Mayor Helen Tirsell announced the resignation of Police Chief Ronald Lindgren.

Lindgren at no time was available for comment to the press.

Parness read from a statement prepared earlier by Lindgren which said, "The reasons for my resignation are that I have reached apparently irreconcilable differences of opinion with the city manager on my management styles and tasks."

The resignation, like the news conference that announced it, came as a surprise. After Parness met in executive session Monday night with the city council, there had been rumors that Lindgren might leave the position.

Parness said the difference of opinion between him and Lindgren involved internal affairs and administration of the department by the chief that "were not in the best interests of the city."

Parness in his own written statement extended his personal wish for the future professional success of Chief Lindgren, "whether it be in some aspect of law enforcement work or an entirely different career."

Council Member Dale Turner told The Times that "there was a difference in management philosophy and Ron chose to resign. I agree with the decision. The relationship (between Parness and Lindgren) went to the point where it was not going to work."

"I'm extremely disappointed this had to happen," said Turner.

Council Member John Staley said he agreed with the action. "I discussed it with the chief myself. He submitted his resignation and it was in the best interests of the city."

Parness employed a private investigator in his appraisal of Lindgren, he revealed at the press conference yesterday.

The Times asked Staley if he saw any violation of Lindgren's right to privacy in that.

"I don't know how you investigate a senior police officer without going outside the department," said Staley. "Parness was not trained to do that and does not have time to investigate."

Mayor Helen Tirsell said, "I personally regret losing Ron. We've enjoyed a fine relationship."

Lindgren was only the second police chief in Livermore's history, succeeded-

Pipeline dominates candidate night

The city council election campaigns got under way officially Tuesday night with the first Candidates' Night, sponsored by the Pleasanton, Livermore and Dublin Democrat Club. About 100 people turned out to hear 14 of the candidates discuss various questions. The pipeline still headlined the queries. Only Incumbent Dale Turner of Livermore was unable to attend of the 10 candidates, due to a prior engagement. All 5 of Pleasanton's candidates came. The lights were bright, as were the candidates' smiles despite "opening night nervousness," and the audience response was enthusiastic.

A lot to pay for parking

PLEASANTON — Parking tickets long ignored will come back to haunt you, one motorist discovered Monday evening.

Officer Gary Johansen stopped a vehicle which had expired registration tabs on the license plate. A routine computer check showed 10 outstanding parking warrants on the car's license number.

A confirmation of those warrants listed with the San Francisco Police Department computer showed an additional 68 warrants outstanding.

The driver told officers that he had already paid approximately $1,500 in parking warrants less than one year ago.

He was booked into Santa Rita Jail on 78 outstanding warrants totalling $1,244.

Army officer tells success in detouring young vandals

DUBLIN — The Dublin Chamber of Commerce may wind up sponsoring a session to spread the word about a Youth Values Program aimed at reducing vandalism by gaining cooperation of young people.

During a chamber general membership luncheon meeting yesterday at Dublin Corral, Captain John Bird requested chamber cooperation. He is with the U.S. Army San Francisco District Recruiting Command.

Bird suggested the chamber invite local service clubs and anyone else interested in the subject of reducing juvenile vandalism through the Youth Values Program to a no-host luncheon or other type of gathering.

The non-profit organization was founded by Bill Gray in Southern California. He is known as "Uncle Bill" to program participants.

Bird said he became interested in the program after noticing how a bad record of youthful conduct could limit a military career. He learned more about the program during a PTA meeting, he said.

The approach used in the program "is to dramatically convince youngsters they are important as individuals and their actions are meaningful. Thus armed with a powerful sense of self-esteem ... pride in accomplishment ... and a positive direction ... the youngsters immediately develop a feeling of personal responsibility for their home, school, community and country...as well as a deep respect for other persons and their property."

The program is directed primarily at youngsters between ages five and 12.

Examples of results from within school systems utilizing the program include a 93 per cent vandalism reduction at Ralph Bunche Elementary School in Compton, California. Incidents of vandalism and graffiti to city owned property including parks and street trees were reduced better than 50 per cent in Carson.

Dominguez Elementary School in Carson, California instituted the program in June, 1975. "Vandalism and graffiti completely eliminated ... and remains so today!").

Schools, political figures, local groups and young people themselves praise the system, Bird said.

A second grade student at John Baldwin school in Danville, Ca. wrote "Uncle Bill" and asked him to come save the school from vandalism.

Dublin chamber directors and members said they will consider program sponsorship for the Dublin area.

Bird said if a large enough group was gathered, "Uncle Bill" Gray would make every effort to attend as guest speaker.

Council hopefuls on TV

Cable Connection will spotlight Pleasanton city council candidates tonight at 8 on Channel 10, cablevision.

The hour-long program was filmed at the Pleasanton Hotel, site of the candidates night sponsored by the Pleasanton-Livermore Democratic Club.

The Livermore council candidates portion will be shown on Channel 12, cablevision, Monday through Friday of next week from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

Sandy Sinclair served as moderator for cablevision.

Council candidate profile

Each city council candidate is beginning to gear up the campaign. What can you expect from a candidate if elected? The Times hopes to give readers some early insight into each candidate's plans through this series of articles. Today's story focuses on Oliver Anjo, a 38-year-old Pleasanton council hopeful. Anjo, a CARD Committee member, will likely be the most controversial of the five Pleasanton candidates as he disagrees on many subjects with the current council and minces no words.

Planners ponder new homes plans for steep hillside

PLEASANTON — New plans to develop 50 acres off Longview Drive are being studied at the planning department.

Plans for that property raised a furor here over two years ago when Dr. Howard Long battled city hall over requirements for the steep road leading to his land.

City council denied Long his plan then and Long took the issue to court. After two eight-hour public hearings the city denied the proposal a second time, a decision the court upheld.

The L and H Land Company, current owners of the land, recently submitted a tentative map to build 10 luxurious homes on the 50 acres.

Planning staff is now analyzing how the environmental assessment of the project should be handled.

In a staff meeting yesterday, fire department representatives worried that the steep terrain will be difficult to reach with fire trucks.

"That was the most definite concern with the project," said planning analyst Richard Glen.

Past projects proposed for that property were turned down because the steep, narrow road created a possibly dangerous fire situation.

Other concerns being examined include potential landslides and the aesthetic impact on the hillside.

The property is zoned hillside planned development, which gives the city a great deal of control over any project built there. Planning staff is expected to decide within a few days whether L and H Land Company must complete an environmental impact report before submitting their plans for approval or denial by the city.

In a separate project, The Housing Group submitted plans to build 106 apartments near Mission Park.

Built on flatland, the units are proposed as garden apartments costing between $240 and over $300 a month.

Both proposals must go through the design review board, the planning commission and city council before finally approved or disband-

Housing fund up for grabs

Over $5 million in Housing and Urban Development funds will be up for grabs in Alameda and Contra Costa counties this year. But Pleasanton Housing Authority director Michael Parsons says "the likelihood is not great" that this city will receive a portion of the housing assistant funds.

Last year HUD funded the authority to replace 50 units at Komandorski Village, low income housing in 19 the state has mandated be demolished by 1979.

Parsons still needs funds to replace the other 100 units at Komandorski, yet says HUD might not fund the authority two years in a row since other communities are also clamoring for money.

It would be "good planning" to finish Pleasanton's public housing project soon, instead of dragging the process out over years, according to the director. But he doubts HUD will put all "their eggs in one basket."

"At this rate we're going to have to be at their doorstep every year," says Parsons.

Komandorski is made up of "temporary" housing built by the Army in World War II, but never torn down.

HUD has allocated over $39 million in housing assistant funds for northern California and Nevada this year.

LLL visitors to benefit

Center closes for remodeling

LIVERMORE — The Visitors Center at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will close for two months starting Feb. 1 so extensive remodeling of displays can be made.

Several panels with pictures and information on programs under study at LLL will be replaced in favor of taped descriptions. A multi-media presentation will replace a movie shown at the center.

Lorene Inslee, manager of the visitors office, said she did not want to reveal too many details of the improvements so it will be a surprise to visitors when the center reopens in early April.

The new displays will give insights into the Lab's five major programs. Audible and panel exhibits will show highlights of the weapons design and testing program, magnetic fusion energy experiments, laser program, biomedical studies and non-nuclear programs including solar energy, wind technology, coal gasification and others.

The Visitors Center opened to the public Aug. 1, 1976. Since then, more than 20,000 persons have experienced the displays and hands-on exhibits.

The center averages 1,100 visitors a month, with less than a third of these from the Valley, Inslee said.

Due to the center's large popularity, it opened its doors seven days a week and extended business hours.

Scientists and technicians within LLL have participated in once-a-month "Science Week" presentations for more than a year, putting on one-hour demonstrations of equipment and technology in everyday use at the Lab.

The Visitors Center is located on Greenville Road behind the Lab and is open 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 12:5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

LIVERMORE — A Livermore man accused of starting a fight Monday evening at a local bar reportedly left the tavern, returned minutes later to apologize to the victim and then slugged him again, police report.

According to reports, the suspect was angered at seeing an ex-girlfriend sitting at the bar with another man and allegedly knocked the victim off his stool and wrestled with him before the fight was stopped by other patrons.

The man returned five minutes later, witnesses told officers, apologized and shook hands with the victim, and then grabbed him and another struggle ensued. The suspect left the bar and drove away.

Police spotted the suspect's vehicle later that evening northbound on L Street. The man reportedly ignored officers' red lights and did not stop until patrol cars blocked his path.

Arrested and booked on suspicion of disturbing the peace and battery was Dwight Neil Curtis, 31, of 1085 Murrieta Blvd.

ing John Micheli, who started in the 1930's.

Lindgren served Livermore for five years and prior to that was Union City's police chief for four years.

Bill Zaner, Union City city manager, said yesterday that Lindgren was a good administrator in Union City and had no critics there.

"He took the job in Liver-more because the department was at least twice as big and it was a real career advancement for him," said Zaner.

"Half the town turned out at the going-away dinner for him. He was well-liked and everyone understood he made the move to further his career," Zaner declared.

Captain Jack Essex was named acting police chief in Livermore until a widespread recruitment effort finds a successor to Lindgren. The chief was making $32,352 annually.

Essex said he is not interested in being a candidate for the job.

Enrollment drop clouds Murray schools' plans

The spectre of declining enrollment continues to cloud the Murray School District, making it a near Valley-wide problem.

Latest figures released this week by Murray show that enrollment at the nine kindergarten through eighth grade schools has plummeted almost 350 in the last six months.

And previous projections by a demographer hired by the district indicate the slide will continue through at least 1985.

Projections announced earlier this winter by the Pleasanton and Amador districts indicate both are in for continuing student population declines.

Though having no formal forecast figures, Livermore Valley Unified also anticipates declines.

The figures for Pleasanton indicate a loss of 960 kindergarten through eighth grade students in the next three years.

District officials are in the process of forming a declining enrollment committee to deal with the anticipated plunge.

The Amador district, with four schools, projects a drop of some 300 for the year. The greatest declines have been and will continue to be, according to Dr. David Carlisle, director of research and development, at Dublin High.

Livermore officials previously reported that district has been in a declining enrollment phase the past three years.

Total Murray enrollment as of Jan. 4, 1978 was 4,816. The district began the 1976-77 year with 5,197 and dipped to 5,162 by the end of the school year.

The biggest loss occurred over the summer of 1977, as the district reported 4,830 enrolled Sept. 12, 4,860 by Sept. 21 and 4,843 last month.

Demographer Allan Richards, in a report issued to the district more than a year ago, presented two projections. One was based on a net "move out" of 50 per year and the other on a net move out of 100.

Using the lower figure, Richards projected an enrollment of 4,893 by 1985. Using the 100 move-out figure, Richards projected 5,079 as the September, 1978 enrollment.

Educators concerned with enrollments in the Valley generally believe they may face an annual 4 per cent decline in the immediate years ahead.

Election warms up with candidate night

PLEASANTON — A total of 15 hopefuls for city council seats in Pleasanton and Livermore met the voters Tuesday night in the first Candidates' Night at the Pleasanton Hotel.

Judge Mark Eaton moderated the event, which drew about 100 residents and the cable television crew and press. The Pleasanton portion of the program will be on Channel 10 at 8 tonight. The Livermore portion will run daily, 8 a.m., next Monday through Friday on Channel 12.

Each Pleasanton candidate was given five minutes for introduction, and questions were asked of the five candidates during another 30 minutes. The pace picked up considerably for the last half of the evening, when nine of Livermore's 10 candidates had only three minutes to summarize their positions. Questions also bogged down in the Livermore portion when they devoted considerable time to the pipeline questions. They only had time to open with responses to a question on the two per cent growth rate ceiling, and a quick parting comment on the elected mayor issue.

The pipeline also received some time from the Pleasanton candidates, but the consensus was more amiable. "I think Pleasanton people voted for the pipeline and as their representative I would continue to vote for it," said Walt Wood, who has lived in Pleasanton about 12 years. "But in no way is it (pipeline) a final solution and I would continue to work for total reclamation."

Oliver Anjo, who labeled himself a "fiscal conservative," was asked about his role in the fair board decision to pay sewage costs. He felt the city should receive a portion of sales charges. He also felt the fair grounds should pay for other services, such as road work and water, since there are 50 families living on the fair grounds year-round.

John Foley, who mentioned the 67 per cent property tax increase over last three years in his remarks, was asked how he would reduce taxes. He said he would do away with service personnel except supervisory capacity in maintenance to reduce some costs.

Ed Alves referred to the initiative petition of putting the pipeline question to the voters in June. Noting that the pipeline is needed for increased growth he said, "We may have to marry SRCS (San Ramon Community Services District). It may not be the right marriage, but we don't know. Tell us what you think. We can't make the right decisions if we don't know how you think."

Kormandorski Village received some comments from the Pleasanton candidates: "We need to respond to the people's needs," said Kephart, who added he felt housing should be provided for those within the community but didn't think they should encourage others to come from outside the city. He said they didn't have the jobs or transportation for others coming in to the low income housing.

"I'm in favor of replacing that decadent thing we call Kormandorski Village with decent housing that people can afford," said Alves, who is on the Pleasanton Housing Authority.

"I don't think we should go down there and build a castle in the sky when we could have rented apartments in the city," said Anjo. "I recommend turning the whole lock, stock and barrel over to Dublin since they voted for it and phase it out of the Pleasanton Housing Authority."

Livermore's nine candidates touched on some other issues, such as city budget and citizens' rights, heritage preservation and replacing the city manager. But the primary focus of remarks and questions was on the pipeline.

Judge Eaton presented the candidates with a three-pronged question, combining several queries from the audience. Questions were submitted in writing during the candidates' introductions and sorted by the moderator. The three questions involved the vote of the city council in light of the vote of the citizens against the pipeline; what the council should do if the CARD group is successful in its efforts to get the issue on the ballot, and third, what about the move by LAVMA to increase the size of the pipeline from 30 inches to 36 inches.

Mayor Helen Tirsell gave her background information drawn from her experiences as LAVMA board member. "It was obvious to me there would be a project and obvious that taxpayers would bear the burden of the cost," she summarized. "A lot of us would like to use the water in the valley if it were feasible." Incumbent John Staley challenged the statement that the pipeline was put before the voters. The questions to the voters were about capacity of pipeline and could it be paid for by bonds.

Gurnam Sidhu argued not so much with the pipeline idea as with the chosen route over the hills.

Terrence Fox questioned the response that LAVMA was "mandated" to build the pipeline. "The mandate didn't say build a pipeline," he said. "It said we had to clean up the water, we can't dump in the creek, can't spray it, and LAVMA spent four years doing a study of it."

Striking a note of humor in the remarks, Marlin Ebert said LAVMA "sounds like someone mispronounced an abrasive soap." He described the whole pipeline situation as "alphabet soup." But he asked why there isn't someone on the staff who is a competent engineer to advise the city council on such matters.

Bob Weissel, city employee who ran for city council two years ago, linked most of his comments to his firm belief that "the problems of the city could lie in the city, individuals who have been running the city like Bill Parness and Dan Lee."

Social services coalition

Revenue sharing on agenda

The second general meeting of the fledgling Valley Social Services Coalition is set for Wednesday, Jan. 25, at 10 a.m. in the Community Presbyterian Church social hall in Pleasanton.

Tom McCormick, community contract coordinator for Alameda County, will discuss revenue sharing and a new proposal for contracting with community providers.

The coalition is a representation of social service agencies throughout the Livermore-Amador Valley. The coalition's development committee will present a slate of interim officers and ask the general membership for ratification of the steering committee recommendations. Ruth Freis and Miriam Miller will describe staff services for Inter-Act provided by Valley Child Care, and McCormick will talk on the future of general revenue sharing and the community contract administration study.

Steering committee members will recommend the name "Inter-Act, Inter-Agency coordinating Task Force," during the meeting.

Committee participants include Betty Stallings, executive director of the Valley Volunteer Bureau; Bea Langlois, Good Samaritan; Celia Baker, Health Care Concerns, Hotline, and Valley Health AC; Dawn Gordon, Pleasanton Housing Authority; Miriam Miller, Valley Child Care; Ruth Freis, Valley Child Care; Sharon Kosch, City of Pleasanton; Linda Woodward, Tri-Valley Child Development Center; Lu Wilson, Pleasanton Senior Center, and Barbara Tuck, Parental Stress.

The steering committee will also present a slate of officers to serve through June 30. The slate includes Milt Woolley, Horizons, president; Betty Stallings, Valley Volunteer Bureau, vice-president; Bea Langlois, Good Samaritan, secretary; Marian Mendelsohn, Family Service, treasurer.

Pleasanton hopeful vows austere budget if elected

PLEASANTON — Oliver Anjo minces no words about what he would work for if elected to city council March 7.

Disband the Housing Authority. Push for district elections. Go with self-insurance in both the city and schools. And drop the LAVWMA pipeline.

Anjo, a 58-year-old retired military officer, and CARD Committee member, will probably become the most controversial candidate in this race.

CARD has fought city hall on many issues and is hardly in good standing with current city council members. Anjo recognizes that he may have a difficult time working with the council majority remaining after the two new members are elected in March. But he asserts the time has come for a serious change in city government, claiming council is not responsive to the public.

A fiscal conservative, Anjo thinks the city should get out of the public housing business altogether.

"I would disband the Housing Authority right off the bat. I would turn Komanowski Village (150-units of low-income public housing) over to another type administration. And I would turn over Kottlinger Place (50-units of low income housing for the elderly) to a church group immediately."

Whether city council has the power to disband the Housing Authority is uncertain, according to the city attorney's office. The authority is an entity separate from the city. Council could, if it chose, disband the authority's citizen board and name itself to the board, thereby regulating what actions the authority could take.

Oliver Anjo

Anjo also wants to see district elections replace the city-wide vote for council members here. That would force each member to be held accountable to the people in his/her neighborhood, as well as insure council is chosen from throughout the city instead of having several members living in the same area with similar incomes, Anjo believes.

Stridently against the planned valley waste water export pipeline, he says he would rather "see the city buy the land on which to sprinkle effluent water if necessary" than ship the effluent out to the bay.

In his effort to cut city costs, Anjo says he would push for self-insurance for the city and local schools, claiming it would be cheaper and probably safer than sticking with an insurance company.

"We could hire two guards to watch each school at night for vandalism and it still wouldn't be as costly as insurance is now," he says, adding that he has mentioned this idea to Assemblyman (D-Pleasanton) Floyd Mori.

A quiet, low-key man, ness is desperately needed here, the candidate says, although Anjo does support limiting future residential growth to 2 percent a year. How could the city encourage commercial growth? "One way to do it would be to provide a tax incen-

Council candidate

Anjo would like to see the city police be more severe with children causing vandalism, as well as their parents.

Although he doesn't claim he could cut property taxes, he does say he would hold the tax level against any increases.

"I think there's fat in all city departments which could be cut. The city, just like a business, shouldn't live beyond its revenues," adding that he also suspects city personnel could be cut back without hindering the efficiency of government.

His philosophy on recreation is that the city shouldn't compete with private business. Thus, if the private tennis courts in the city are overflowing, the city should also provide courts because they would be needed. But private courts aren't overflowing, he says, so the city should get out of its contract with the county for Tennis Faire off Bernal Avenue.

When looking at "cutting the fat," Anjo wouldn't touch the police and fire departments.

"I support police and fire 100 percent. In fact, I think we need more police and fire protection."

More industry and busitive for the start. Not to give them a free ride all the way, but to attract them to town at the beginning."

To guarantee sewage capacity, Anjo thinks the city should "divorce itself completely" from the Dublin, San Ramon Services District sewer plant and apply for funds to build its own treatment facility.

Further, the city should seek retroactive payment from the Alameda County fair board for free sewage capacity and treatment given over the past 19 years, Anjo says.

Some city officials have wondered among themselves if Anjo can handle the city council job with his heart condition. But Anjo says he received full approval from two doctors before filing his nomination papers.

Forseeing no health problems because he doesn't work at another job, Anjo adds he would quit the race if he felt campaigning was adversely affecting his condition.

Planning a small campaign walking door-to-door to meet the voters, the candidate says won't accept more than $10 from each supporter.

Jaycee Wives spur public service plan

The Livermore Jaycee Wives Mainstream Committee, a group which was given $200 in a special grant to renovate the Buena Vista Youth Ranch, will meet this week to formulate more plans on upgrading both the ranch and the Crisis Outreach Program being developed there.

The Jaycee Wives became the first Jaycee auxiliary in the nation in 1976 to receive grant funding from the United States Jaycee Mainstream project.

The $2000 grant was used to generate fund-raising projects and renovate Building Nine at the ranch, to eventually begin the services of a Crisis Outreach Program there. In addition, the group raised an additional $2000 through Mainstream supported projects such as garage sales, auctions and stationery sales, according to the Jaycee Wives.

The Livermore Jaycee Wives were recognized in July 1977 by the United States Jaycees as having one of the top three Mainstream projects in the nation. Community support for the project came additionally from the Pleasanton Jaycees and Wives, the North Livermore Jaycees and Wives, and such local

State payroll takes big hike

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's state payroll recorded its biggest one-year increase in 16 years during 1977 while Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. continued to criticize what he called the state's "bloated" bureaucracy.

But the average growth in the state's civil service work force during Brown's three-year tenure has been much closer to Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan's record than that of former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown. State Personnel Board records show.

The work force has grown an average of 2.3 percent annually under Brown, compared with annual growth rates of 5.1 percent under Brown's father and 1.5 percent under Reagan.

Most of the hiring in 1977 took place in state hospitals and other mental health programs where there have been charges of patient neglect and unexplained deaths. Critics blame these problems on inadequate staffing which they say was caused by Brown's vetoes of funds for extra personnel.

The Democratic governor is pledged to still more expansion of mental health programs during 1978.

"I'm not going to hold the line on patients' lives. The mentally ill require assistance," Brown said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I have cut. I have trimmed. I have squeezed to the maximum degree, and I will do more. But not where critical needs must be met," Brown added, borrowing Reagan's "cut, squeeze and trim" slogan.

"An interesting point to note," Brown added in a briefing on his 1978-79 budget, "is that most of those places where I have made deep cuts, it's coming back — mental health, the Commerce Department."

"I'm saying it is very hard to cut government. The appetite is strong, continuous, inexorable," the 39-year-old Democrat added.

Personnel who had never crossed the Equator were initiated into the "Ancient Order of the Deep" and given the title of "trusty shell-back." They visited Australia, Iran, Pakistan, Singapore and the Republic of the Philippines on the cruise.

Robinson is a 1975 graduate of Granada High School.

The battle "E" is earned by demonstrating battle readiness and his department was one of three aboard the Independence that received recognition this year.

A 1970 graduate of Baylor University with a bachelor's degree in business administration, he joined the Navy in 1971.

PLEASANTON — Coast Guard Seaman apprentice Edward D. Isaacs, son of Delsie Clayton of 2276 Segundo Court, has reported for duty with the at the Coast Guard base, Ketchikan, Alaska. He joined the Coast Guard in August, 1976.

DUBLIN — Navy Ensign Thomas E. Lindner, son of Thomas W. Lindner, has completed the surface warfare officer's basic course conducted at Newport, R.I.

The course is designed to train junior officers to perform as watch officers and division officers aboard

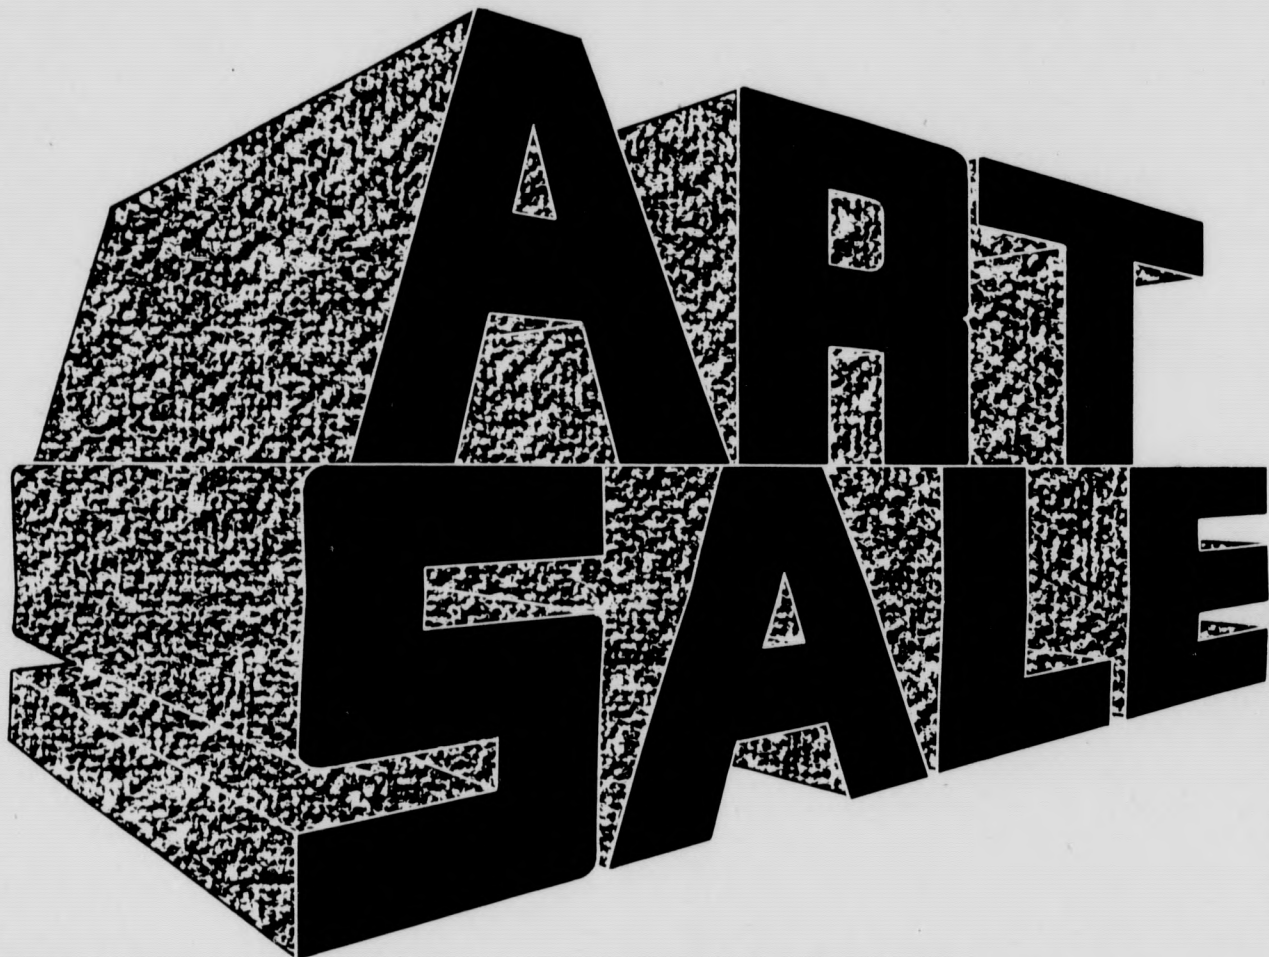

Navy ships. Lindner received extensive instruction on the duties of an underway officer of the deck which included handling and maneuvering in formation under simulated battle conditions. He also studied radar detection, tracking and plotting of enemy aircraft, ships and missiles; communications, damage control and ship-board organization.

He is a 1977 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., with a bachelor of science degree.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We have lived in the same home for many years and we love it. I've just been informed that I may have to move. I've resisted this in the past, but I realize I'm going to have to tell the boss that I'll go along with him on this. I've a choice, however, of going now or waiting until the next opening which would delay the move two years. I'm wondering if it would matter for my kids who are now 12 and 15. If it wouldn't make any difference, I'd be tempted to make the break now because it would be easier on me and my wife at this time. — V.P.

Dear V.P.: If you're going to have to make the move eventually, I believe I'd opt for making it now, rather than later, if I were you. It would be more advantageous for your 15-year-old if he could graduate from high school before a move. However, since a later move would come in his senior year, a move now would be much easier for him.

According to recent research, the critical ages for children, when it comes to moving, are between 6 and 11. Michael Inbar of the University of Haifa feels that these early school years may be critical for a child's educational future. Geographical uprooting can mean a drop in his eventual academic achievement, or even in his IQ.

If it's easier for you and your wife now, it would probably also be easier for your children because they would sense less tension and anxiety in you. Moving needn't always be a disaster. Parents can help prepare their children and can actually turn a change of home into an adventure that challenges and stimulates the family.

If it's possible, try to take furniture and the flavor of the old home with you. When you arrive at the new home, arrange the bed, desk or tables in the children's rooms in such a way that they'll give them a sense of familiarity. Allow each child to take along some special books or playthings. They can be needed "security" symbols.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 42, have a good job and everything in the way of material things and position or status. And I should be happy. But I'm not. My problem is in personal relations. I've married three times and all of these unions have been a mess. Looking back, I realize that I always try to get the prettiest girl around. I don't know why. I just don't seem to have much insight. I do know that I don't want to go on repeating choices that can lead to disaster. — S.C.

Dear S.C.: You're wise to take time out for a close, analytical look at yourself before you marry again. I don't think you should worry about your "lack of insight." The fact that you recognize this can be a plus, provided you seek the professional help you need to get at the root of your problems.

The seeds of divorce are brought to the marriage and most people tend to repeat the same destructive patterns unless they really analyze why they behave and choose as they do.

Men who consistently look for the sexiest or the prettiest woman around are using her as a conquest, a way of displaying themselves as they display her. Instead of looking at the whole woman, this kind of man sees only the exterior because basically he thinks of women as objects or possessions.

If this is your attitude it probably reflects some insecurity within you. Whatever it is, it's going to color all your relationships with women and probably those with men as well.

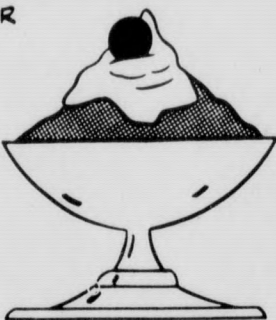

Take the time now to get to the bottom of your problem and you'll improve your chances for happiness.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS GELATIN MADE FROM?"

A. GELATIN IS A PROTEIN FOOD THAT IS EXTRACTED FROM THE BONES AND CERTAIN OTHER PARTS OF FOOD ANIMALS.

VALERIE TURECKI
N. TONAWANDA, NY

Did you know that when you eat a gelatin dessert, you are eating a food made from bones?

Of course, you are not eating the bones themselves. You are eating a protein food that has been extracted from them.

To make gelatin, the bones of cows and other food animals are cleaned and then soaked in a strong acid until they become spongy. The bone material is then cooked in hot water.

When heated, the protein matter in the bones dissolves into a clear solution.

After the solution cools it forms a solid, jellylike mass, called gelatin. The gelatin is then dried and ground into powder.

When you make gelatin desserts that taste like raspberry, cherry, lemon and so on, you are using powdered gelatin that has been sweetened and flavored with fruit juices and other flavorings.

The gelatin forms a stiff jelly after being dissolved in hot water and chilled.

HEATHCLIFF WILL RETURN NEXT WEEK

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had a "more than normal" problem with acne, not just pimples and blackheads but the deep kind that leaves scars on my face and back — ever since the ninth grade. Since that time I have been under a dermatologist's care off and on.

I have been leery of taking too many drugs and medicines that the doctor prescribes because of the things you hear about side effects of antibiotics. My folks highly discourage the use of tetracycline and say that the acne will "go away when I get older" with the attitude that a few scars don't hurt anything. I disagree with them because, in the first place, I have more than just a few scars, and secondly I'm sure any doctor or any person who has had the problem is aware that it is very painful emotionally as well as physically.

It seems to me that it is totally unnecessary to put up with it for this long. I'm now 22, and even though my back is clear except for scars, my face seems to be getting worse. It's not to the place where my whole face is pitted, scarred and totally disfigured, but it doesn't impress me as being the right idea to let it go until it comes to this stage and then try to do something about it. I'd be grateful for any information you can give me.

DEAR READER — You really should do everything you can to arrest the problem, and the first thing to do is start following your doctor's advice. That means when he prescribes medicine — take it. He knows what he is doing.

I am aware of the concern that many people have about using antibiotics in the treatment of acne, and it is misplaced. Acne problems commonly begin at puberty or later while the big danger in the use of tetracyclines is that they will affect the development of the teeth or cause staining and discoloration of the teeth. However, the teeth have developed and passed the stage that this can occur in the teenager with acne, so this is not a good reason to fail to take the tetracycline that your doctor has prescribed for you.

win at bridge

South knew that North was showing a very good hand and decided to try for the vulnerable game. He also decided to bid his four-card spade suit rather than his five-card club suit.

West opened the king of hearts and continued the suit. South ruffed in dummy, cashed the ace and queen of trumps and led the king of clubs. East took his ace and the defense was still sure of a spade trick, but South was also sure of his contract.

Four spades could have been beaten by most unusual defense. West must open his singleton club. East takes his ace, gives his partner a club ruff, gets in again with a heart provided West underleads his ace-king-queen and a second club ruff sets South.

Five clubs would probably wheel in, but a spade lead would lead to its defeat. We are going to discuss this same hand tomorrow in connection with the defense against a heart contract by East and West.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North doubled one heart for takeout. He doubled four hearts as a general penalty double based on high cards.

Same old story at Crosby: It's wet

Ex-president Gerald Ford climbs up the beach with Arnold Palmer after slicing his drive at Pebble Beach.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — After years of drought, more traditional "Crosby Weather" has returned.

Rain and wind, which long have characterized the prestigious, $225,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, have swept the Monterey Peninsula with such force and magnitude that the entire tournament has been threatened.

"If we get hit hard again," said Clyde Mangum, Deputy Commissioner of Tour Operations for the PGA Tour, "well ..."

The weather forecasters say Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill — the three courses used for this unique event — will be hit again. And hit hard.

Another major rainstorm was expected to inundate the already-saturated courses Thursday and Friday and the weatherman said it was possible that another system might move in from the Pacific on Sunday. The tourney, in which celebrity amateurs play as partners to the world's leading professionals, is scheduled to begin Thursday.

"We just can't take much more moisture," Mangum said. "The courses are saturated now. There's no place for the water to go."

It's an ironic turnaround for the picturesque Monterey Peninsula, which had suffered through three years of drought before the rain began an almost-uninterrupted downpour three weeks ago. It has produced flooding and closed roads. Actor George C. Scott, one of the amateurs due to play, had to be rescued by the Coast Guard when ocean swells threatened his 85-foot yacht en route to the tournament.

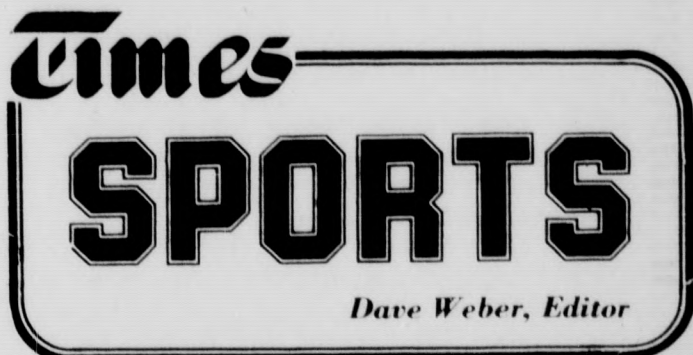

Weekend rains delayed by one day the qualifying round. The courses are just short of unplayable. Standing water pools and puddles cover the layouts that stretch along the headlands of Carmel Bay. The ground squishes with each footstep and water oozes into every track. So-called "winter rules" have been instituted so that players can lift, clean and place balls in the fairways.

"In a way, we're lucky," one Tour official said. "With the weather history we've had here, I think we could play here under worse conditions than anywhere else. I think they'd play this tournament when any other would be washed out."

Teen-ager Nathaniel Crosby is the host in place of his late father, the founder and guiding force behind the event.

As usual, Jack Nicklaus is opening his season in the Crosby. Chief among his opponents are Lanny Wadkins, who won his PGA title here last year, and Tom Watson, who started his drive to Player of the Year honors with a victory in the 1977 Crosby.

Other standouts include Arnold Palmer, a strong, fifth place finisher at the Phoenix Open who will play as the partner of former President Gerald Ford, U.S. Open champion Hubert Green, Hale Irwin, Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Jerry Pate, Ben Crenshaw and Johnny Miller, who won this title in 1974 when rain limited the tournament to 54 holes.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday are scheduled for national television coverage by ABC-TV.

Dons, Livermore in key girls' cage battle

The Amador Valley High School girls basketball team will host Livermore tonight, as the Dons, with the home court advantage, will try and keep their East Bay Athletic League record of 4-0 intact.

According to Livermore coach Diane Staedel, the Dons might have an edge.

"The home court advantage helps a lot. All of the fans that they have really help to psych them up," Staedel said.

But that's not admitting much, especially the possibility of defeat.

"We have the height to combat their height. If our defense works, we'll beat them," she predicted.

The Cowgirls league record is 3-1 but Staedel said that the one loss to Dublin shouldn't have happened.

"But that's life," she said philosophically.

"It's a tough, competitive league, and we know we have to beat them to be number one," Staedel predicted.

Both coaches said that the match-up would be close, with high scoring from both squads because of the hot shooters.

"They have nice shooters," Dons coach Lottie Bain said. "But we're aware of their defense too."

While her team will be concentrating on the Pokes center Pat Shirley, and Lee Hardiman, who has averaged 15 points a game, the skills of the Livermore defense will be tested by Amador's Jayne Kuhns, Sheryl Withoft, and Jamie Watson, according to Staedel.

"Those are three that we'll be watching. We need to block them out and make sure that the shot doesn't get set under the basket so they can dump off to Kuhns," Staedel said.

The Pokes will contract with guard Diane Leri, who has been their top scorer for the last three games.

"It should be a high scoring game. It depends on how well my defense does," Bain said.

This will be the first time this season the two teams have met, and it promises to be a fired up contest.

"I've had other people watch them, and we know what to expect," Bain said. "We're pretty confident."

California will host Foothill, Monte Vista plays at home against Dublin, and Granada travels to San Ramon in other EBAL games tonight. All of the action gets underway at 7:30 pm.

In Tuesday night action Amador Valley downed Granada 47-36. San Ramon downed California, 49-43. Livermore crushed Monte Vista 76-64 and Dublin beat Foothill, 47-41.

Kuhns tallied 18 markers to spark the Dons past Granada. Withoft added 10. Lynn Bousilman had 21 points for the losers.

Lee Hardiman had 24 points for Livermore and Patti Shirley added 20.

Turnovers hurt California in its loss to San Ramon as the Grizzlies committed 27. The winners made 22 turnovers.

Allen Fired by 'Skins

WASHINGTON — George Allen has been fired as coach of the Washington Redskins, the Washington Post reported Wednesday night.

In a copyrighted story in Thursday's editions, the Post quoted Edward Bennett Williams, president of the National Football League team as saying, "I just reached the point where I couldn't wait any longer for George to make up his mind and have so advised him of our decision to look for a new head coach and general manager."

"Our negotiations with George Allen are concluded," Williams told the Post.

Last July, Williams called a news conference to announce that the Redskins and Allen had agreed to a new four-year contract. But Allen, who has been coach of the team for the past seven years, never signed the pact, which called for an annual salary of $250,000 a year.

Local newspapers have reported that Allen refused to sign the contract because it took away some of his control over financial matters and personnel.

Allen's record with the Redskins was 67-30-1, the best by one coach in the team's history. The team finished this past season with a 9-5 mark and failed to make the post-season playoffs for only the second time since 1971.

Allen was not immediately available for comment.

Mat's defense tops Cowboys

Granada High School's soccer team moved to within one point of league-leading Dublin yesterday with a tight 2-1 victory over Livermore in East Bay Athletic League action at Christensen School.

The Matadors are now 5-0-2 while the Cowboys dropped to 4-4.

Granada was outshot 32-10 but scored early and then held off a furious second-half rally by the Pokes for the victory.

With six minutes gone in the contest Jim Childs booted in a six-yard shot that went through several Livermore players.

The score was set up on a corner kick by Mike D'Ambra, who booted it to the center where Childs was waiting and booted it past the surprised Livermore defenders.

2 minutes later Robert Jamieson added the second and winning goal for the Matadors.

After Steve D'Ambra dribbled the ball to the center he fired the ball to Jamieson on the right side who then smacked the ball in on an eight-yard bang that went past the outstretched hands of Cowboy goalie Ricky Woods.

That made it 2-0. Granada, and it appeared the Matadors had the game well in hand.

However, Livermore can back strong and threatened several times in the first half, outshooting the Matadors 21-6 in that period.

With the beginning of the second period the rain started to fall but the Cowboys seemed to be fired up by it and scored with 10 minutes elapsed in the period.

Greg O'Dell, who took a pass from all-around star Robert Turpin, booted one in straight-on from seven yards out.

The Cowboys had numerous other chances but narrowly missed on some occasions and on others were stopped by the outstanding goalkeeping of Granada's Ron King.

King collected 20 saves, several times diving to his knees to snatch the ball away before it went in. He also received some outstanding help by the Matador fullbacks.

Livermore kept the ball in Granada territory most of the second half, but the Matador defense, which hadn't allowed a goal in the EBAL season until yesterday's game, held tough.

'Pokes, AV mat contest could decide championship

The East Bay Athletic League dual-meet wrestling championship could well be decided tonight when Livermore hosts Amador Valley in a battle of undefeated teams.

Both teams have 3-0 marks going into the contest. Amador Valley took a big step toward the title by defeating powerful Granada 36-14 Tuesday night. An Amador victory over Livermore would give the Dons victories over the two teams generally regarded to be their toughest competition for the EBAL crown.

In other matches tonight California is at Foothill, Monte Vista travels to Foothill and San Ramon is at Granada.

Livermore warmed up for the match with Amador Valley by crushing Monte Vista 51-18 Tuesday night.

The middle weight classes could be the key to the match, according to AV coach Ron Blanton.

"There should be some good matches at 140, 147 and 156," he said. Three or four matches in the middle weights may well determine the outcome."

Naish Piazza of Livermore battles Mitch Aerdia of AV in the 147-pound class. Both are rated highly and it could be the best match of the meet.

"We expect a tough match from them," said Blanton. "It should be tight all the way through. We're pretty well balanced but so are they. Both teams match up about evenly."

Livermore junior varsity coach Kevin Gunn feels the key to the match could be the health some of the Pokes wrestlers.

"We have a couple of guys who are questionable," Gunn said. "It all depends a lot on our health."

However, Livermore was awesome in squashing Monte Vista Tuesday.

The Cowboys built up a 33-0 lead and only lost four matches, three by decisions.

Dale and Darryl Hansen again excellent for the Pokes.

Dale pinned Mike Mahew at 1:07 of the third round and Darryl pinned Brian Moore at 35 seconds of the first.

Granada hopes to rebound against San Ramon tonight. The Wolves picked up their first victory of the season against the Grizzlies, 39-22. Steve Strand and Mark Owens had first-round pins in the 114-pound and 156-pound divisions to spark San Ramon's victory.

Ken Major was impressive for California, defeating Charlie Brennan 11-4 in the 167-pound match. Jim Bearman was the only Grizzly wrestler to record a pin, bringing down John Ganley with 1:20 left in the first round of the 122-pound competition.

Dublin recorded its first victory with a 40-23 win over visiting Foothill.

Vikes fall to SJ, meet San Mateo

PLEASANT HILL —

Diablo Valley College's basketball team will be fighting to stay in the running for a playoff berth in the Golden Gate Conference race when it hosts City College of San Mateo tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m.

The Vikings lost their second straight game Tuesday night when they fell to powerful San Jose 65-55 on the winners' court.

San Jose ran its record to 4-1 while the Vikings fell to 2-3. DVC is now 0-10 on the road this season.

Coach Gerry Jones' troops turned in a respectable job against a team that is always rough on its home court.

"I'm not unhappy with the way we played," said Jones. "San Jose City is a quick, physical team, and we were able to keep them offside most of the game. Our defense was outstanding, but the 15-to-20 footers that normally drop for us kept going in and out."

The two teams traded baskets most of the first half and went into the locker room tied at 26-26. The Jaguars' superior shooting began to tell in the second half, though, as they opened up a five-point lead. The Vikings played well enough to stay close until the final seconds.

Jones said better rebounding might have pulled it out for his team. "San Jose was rebounding well, but we just couldn't get that second shot at the basket when we needed it," he said.

DVC did get a good rebounding effort from 6-6 center Ken Craft, who grabbed 12. Six-foot guard David Mosley led the Vikings' scorers with 13, while high-scoring forward Darrell Mellion was held to six points.

Victor Conyers topped San Jose City with 18.

Rain bothers harness racers

One week from today, Golden Gate will open its longest meeting in history, 98 days of thoroughbred sport.

Over 1100 horses are stabled at the Albany track with several hundred more in the surrounding area, but they all have the same problem. As of now, they have no place to train seriously.

While the near-constant rains of the last month have eased drought fears, they have also kept the race tracks in poor condition causing the horses to miss vital workouts.

"We have a lot of horses in training around and should have no trouble filling early cards," Racing Secretary Harry Krovit said yesterday.

"Right now, we're hoping for about four days of no rain before we open next Thursday. Sunshine and wind will help get the track back in good condition," he noted.

Golden Gate has increased its stakes program to 33 stakes, including three five furlong turf sprints to open things next week. All three of those races, the opening day Golden Bear Stakes for 3-year-olds, the Sorority Stakes Friday for 3-year-old fillies and the Camilla Urso Handicap for fillies and mares, 3-year-old and up, on Saturday will all be switched to the main track.

The $1.3 million stakes program is headed by the $150,000 California Derby March 4, an event that figures to attract Eclipse champion Affirmed as he prepares for the Kentucky Derby.

Gaels get 1st win

Gael heavyweight Jerome King continued to impress with a third-round pin of Eric Moran at 58 seconds.

Dublin got going with a forfeit victory in the 97-pound division but Keith Rowan of Foothill Pinned Paul Cobo at 35 seconds of the first round in the 105-pound action to pull the Falcons even.

But Shannon Risham put the Gaels in the lead for good with a 6-1 decision over Kevin Shimubuku at 112-pound to give Dublin a 9-6 advantage.

The Falcons came back with two straight wins but a forfeit for Dublin at 140 pounds held off the Foothill threat.

Riddled by injuries

Unbeaten Glads meet DeAnza

The Chabot College wrestling team will brave wet highway to travel to De Anza College tonight, where they will try to keep their Golden Gate Conference record untarnished.

This duel-meet will probably be the most difficult of the season for the grapplers, although head coach Zack Papachristos is confident that the squad can come away with another victory.

The potential problem is that three of the team's starters are out with injuries. Kevin Dugan, 158-pounder from Dublin High, will sit out the evening with a sprained ankle. Bill Choate, 177 weight division, will keep him company with torn knee ligaments. Ron Freeman, rated number one in the state in the 190 weight class, is out for the season due to a hernia.

Dugan will be replaced by Paul Gilmore, and Roy Coudright will fill Choate's spot, according to Papachristos.

The injury situation will shift a lot of responsibility on freshman heavyweight Tom Thomsen, a Castro Valley High grad.

"Since Freeman is out, there'll be more pressure on me to win in the upper weight division. The injuries hurt us, but we've got a pretty good team anyway. Even though we've got those guys out, we won our last tournament. That made everything right. The main thing was that we won," Thomsen said.

What few people knew was that Thomsen also sustained an injury, and has been entering and winning matches with a slightly dislocated shoulder.

In the most recent tournament, the De Anza Invitational, Thomsen was named "Most Outstanding Wrestler." He defeated All Star Craig Schoene from Skyline College for the championship.

Surprisingly, the prospective police science major gave up his place in the State All Star Meet in Bakersfield this Saturday to Schoene.

Papachristos, who was named head coach for the event, said that he felt he could have taken Thomsen, along with Dugan, Choate, and Freeman.

"Thomsen felt that Schoene should go because he's a sophomore, even though he, (Thomsen), earned the bearth," Papachristos explained. "Definitely, the top people were chosen to go, even though they can't," he said.

Thomsen explained that one of the reasons that he didn't go, besides the fact that he wanted Schoene to have the chance, was that he didn't want to get injured more.

"I'm a little sore, and plus, he's a sophomore, and I'm sure I'll have a chance to go next year," Thomsen said confidently.

Thomsen said that he prepares for his matches by, "just trying to get my head right and think about what I'm going to do, and how I'll set up my moves and strategies, and how I'll counter someone else's moves."

The meet that he is looking forward to as the most competitive this season is against Diablo Valley College's heavyweight next week.

"Mike Huff will be somebody to beat for sure," Thomsen predicted.

"Last year I didn't have the competition. This year the league is tougher and for me that's better," he said in explanation of his success at Chabot. "My strongest point is take downs. I'm not that concerned with riding time. I just try to get away and wrestle on my feet," Thomsen said of his winning style.

But, his confidence is building up, and he's ready for tonight's contest, even though it is likely that he won't have to step on the mat.

De Anza, according to Papachristos, doesn't have anyone in the same weight division as Thomsen, who would them win by forfeit.

Mathews, Snider await Hall of Fame vote

NEW YORK — The recent California rainstorms kept Eddie Mathews and Duke Snider outdoors Wednesday, the day before the Baseball Writers Association of America announces whether these slugging Hall of Fame candidates will be admitted to the famous shrine in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Mathews and Snider knocked on the door last year, but were sent away because they weren't named on 75 percent of the ballots cast by the baseball writers. Only Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs was voted in by the BBWAA last year, surpassing the necessary 288 votes. Mathews picked up 239 and the late Gil Hodges had 224, followed by Enos Slaughter's 222 and Snider's 212.

Reached by telephone at his home in Fallbrook, Calif., the one-time "Duke of Flatbush" said he was shoveling water and mud from his backyard while hoping for a phone call from the BBWAA.

"I had pretty high hopes this year," said Snider, the powerhitting centerfielder for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1950s. "I don't have that many records, but I was one of the better hitters in the Brooklyn Dodger era."

"I was one of the most feared hitters in the league. I guess my strength was consistency. I hit 40 homers for five straight years (1953-57). During the '50s I was compared with Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays on an even par, and I could play centerfield just as well as they could."

"I'm not angry or upset," said Snider, who became eligible for the Hall in 1967. "But I feel I belong."

He now is a broadcaster for the Montreal Expos.

Mathews, a scout for the Milwaukee Brewers, also has his supporters, including his mother, Eloise, who answered the telephone at Eddie's home in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif.

"Ed's out on some jobs in the area because of the big storm," she said. "I know he wants to get in very badly. We're all hoping, keeping our fingers crossed."

"He was disappointed last year, although he took it rather calmly. But you could tell by the look on his face."

Mathews, the longtime third baseman for the Milwaukee and Atlanta Braves, is tied with Banks for ninth place on the career home run list with 512. He finished his 17-year major league career in 1968 with a .271 batting average and 1,453 runs batted in.

A left-handed hitter, Mathews established a National League record by hitting 30 or more homers in nine consecutive seasons (1953-61). In four of those seasons he topped 40 homers, leading the league with 47 in 1953 and 46 in 1959.

Players have mixed feelings about Pro Bowl

TAMPA, Fla. — There's one sure thing about the Pro Bowl. Nobody seems to know just when to play it.

Some of the players in next Monday night's game call it an anticlimactic event, coming as it does just eight days after the real end to the National Football League season, the Super Bowl. Play it a week before the title game, they say.

Others think it belongs right where it is and accept the lack of fan interest as being a natural part of a game in which competition isn't all that fierce.

"I think it would be perfect to play the Pro Bowl in the same city as the Super Bowl, only a week earlier," says Minnesota Vikings running back Chuck Foreman. "They'd save a lot of money and there interest in the game would be a lot higher. There's still some interest now, but it's got to be really pumped up, by players and fans alike."

"If a player was in the Super Bowl, naturally he wouldn't play in the Pro Bowl. But there's enough good players around the league that you could find replacements for them," Foreman said.

Dallas safety Charlie Waters, fresh from the Cowboys' 27-10 Super Bowl victory over Denver, agreed with Foreman's idea and added: "I'm sure it would be enough of an honor just being named to the Pro Bowl team, even if you couldn't play in the game. Playing in the Super Bowl would take the edge off any disappointment."

Wrong, replied Denver defensive end Lyle Alzado.

"If I got picked and couldn't play, even if it was because the Super Bowl was coming up, I'd feel left out," he said. "Maybe this game doesn't count all that much but I still think it's exciting, especially for the players chosen. Playing it now is perfect. Leave it where it is."

Pittsburgh wide receiver Lynn Swann sided with Alzado. "It would be unfair to anybody who wanted to play in the Pro Bowl and couldn't because he was in the Super Bowl," Swann said. "Sure, the Super Bowl's the most important game. But there's a lot of fun in playing this one."

There was almost unanimous agreement against one proposal. Playing the Pro Bowl at the start of the exhibition season, where the College All-Star game used to be, would be unacceptable, perhaps even dangerous.

"It would slow up the progress of every player in the Pro Bowl, especially since starting next year there'll only be four practice games," said Swann.

"Everybody'd be in off-season shape or training camp shape, not in competitive shape," said Dallas defensive end Harvey Martin, who shared the Super Bowl Most Valuable Player honor with teammate Randy White.

Hobey Baker's

A flying ace comes alive

Visitors to the Santa Maria area, especially those who fly, will be fascinated by the decor and the history of Hobey Baker's Food and Drink at the airport there.

A casual, California style restaurant with both a lunch and dinner menu, Hobey's has played heavily on the "stranger than fiction" life of Hobey Baker, an American flying ace from World War I.

Hobart Amory Baker was the last commanding officer of the American 141st squadron in France and died at the age of 26 a little more than a month after the Armistice.

A dashing, devil-may-care flier with a reputation for both skill and recklessness, Baker got his start as a prep hockey and football player in Philadelphia where his family was bona fide blueblood and later played football and hockey at Princeton in the tradition of sporting gentlemen of his day.

He was a standout on Princeton's 1911 national championship team and was described by one hockey writer as "able to fill the stands any day of the week practicing all by himself."

Baker the athlete entered the Army after a short postgraduate career with a bank with an eye on the unrest in Europe. War, he described, was the "ultimate sport" and he played the game to the point of decorating his squadron in Princeton's orange and black and adopting the tiger for an emblem.

Baker crashed and died Dec. 21, 1918 as his unit was preparing to return to the United States. The restaurant is decorated with pictures of him and memorabilia from the war which would interest any history or flying buff.

Dinners are priced from $4.95 for chicken teriyaki to the house special steak and lobster combination for $10.95. The menu includes a limited variety of beef, pork, lamb and seafood dishes. An interesting combination of appetizers and vegetable dishes round out the menu.

Area rated high in dining

Fifteen San Francisco Bay Area restaurants, five more than a year ago, have received "Excellence in Dining" awards from Mainliner, United Airlines' monthly inflight magazine.

A total of 328 awards were presented to outstanding restaurants in the U.S. and Canada this year with San Francisco sharing third place with the Tampa/St. Petersburg area with 15, behind New York with 24 and Los Angeles with 16.

Eight San Francisco restaurants were recognized for the in the three year history of the competition: Chez Leon, Chez Michel, Guido's, Modesto Lanzoni's, North Beach Restaurant, Paprikas Fono, Trader Vic's and Victor's. Monroe's was honored for the second year while Alexis', Blue Boar Inn, La Bourgeoisie, Iron Horse and Rolf's Since 1960 made their first appearance.

Descriptions of all restaurants making the list appeared in the January edition of Mainliner which is carried aboard all United flights.

Last year over 7,000 U.S. and Canadian restaurants were critically evaluated by a 33-member panel and judged in 15 key categories.

Differences shrink with profit margins

SAN FRANCISCO — Further blurring of the distinction between fast food, coffee shops and dinner house operations will occur within the next two years, predicts Laventhol & Horwath's (L & H) 1977 edition of the "California Restaurant Operations."

Departing from the traditional format of pure historical data, L & H restaurant industry experts are including this and four other predictions concerning industry trends which they foresee becoming commonplace within California over the next year or two.

Findings in this third annual California restaurant study indicate that changes in the California minimum wage and tip credit laws, together with general increases in the cost of doing business, significantly affecting the 1976 revenue of coffee shops and full-service restaurants in the Golden State.

According to the study, increases in menu prices, curtailing in advertising, and rigidly controlled operating expenses allowed for an increase in net income (before income taxes) for coffee shops to 8.8 cents on the dollar in 1976 from 7.6 cents in 1975. However, full-service dinner houses experienced a drop in net income from 11.7 cents in 1975 to 7.8 cents in 1976. This was due to increased operating expenses, primarily labor costs, which they were unable to totally pass on to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

Laventhol & Horwath is an international public accounting firm with offices in 25 cities within the U.S. and 41 countries throughout the world. This study has been prepared with the cooperation of L & H's office in Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego and a complimentary copy of the study is available upon request.

Howard's gold rush

If you'll be heading to ski or even gold country this month, hold out on the urge to munch at Denny's.

In Sonoma, that quaint little town west of Lake Tahoe, there's a great restaurant that would've had the '49'ers (the gold-hunters AND the team) gasping for joy.

Howard's is the name, and prime rib is the password at this old West, family dining restaurant that packs a big wallop of great food in the old time tradition.

Up the long flight of stairs and in an old West dining room, Howard's dishes out good, home-style food with the help of some of the most cheerful waitresses I've ever encountered anywhere.

The prime rib dinner, regular cut, goes for $7.95. But that includes all of the family-style goodies as well — making it a bargain for hungry skiers or travelers.

First, diners are served with a huge silver tureen of steaming hot soup — ours was a delicious minestrone, packed with vegetables. Then comes a large bowl of crisp salad with house dressing, all dished out by the diners to their heart's content. A basket of crunchy, fresh garlic bread is passed around, along with a huge plate of pasta.

And all this fare, by the way, is fresh, handsomely served and hearty stuff.

Then, the prime rib, served up with a big baked potato, a plate of fresh vegetables, and Yorkshire pudding. Finally, the waitress clears all this delicious eating away — usually after diners have fattened noticeably. And she brings dessert and coffee.

Needless to say, this kind of service or generously fresh eating is rarely available to the city folk of the Bay Area. And it's a real treat to find some of the old hospitality, and good cook-in' ready and waiting at Howard's.

California state politics

Public unions donate most funds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Twenty-six California state legislators received their biggest contributions in the last election from unions representing public employees.

To a greater extent each year, the men and women who work for the state are joining the circle of big contributors previously limited to wealthy friends of politicians, big business and private labor unions.

The California State Employees Association made nearly $460,000 in political contributions in 1976, helping make public employees one of the state's most generous campaign donors.

The political power of public employees has grown with their contributions and their overall increase in political activity.

Critics claim that power will lead to higher taxes as public employees use their influence to win higher salaries and more benefits.

But supporters say the additional influence has only helped equalize power between public employees and their traditional opponents: local governments, business and taxpayer groups.

"I think in the last few years public employees have become a more potent force," says Sen. David Roberti, a Los Angeles Democrat who has carried legislation backed by public employee groups.

"But I think at the very same time their opposition has become more potent too, so we are reaching a cataclysm on the issue of public employee problems." That cataclysm was probably delayed when backers of a measure intended to ban public employee strikes failed to place their initiative on the June ballot.

But the measure's backers say they will try again, which could help make public employee rights one of the state's top political issues in years to come.

The advent of public employees as major campaign donors is a recent development. The CSEA decided in 1972 to set aside $500,000 a year for political contributions. The group was organized in 1931 but had done little contributing before that.

Another major contributor, the California School Employees Association, formed a political arm in 1976 and donated $176,044 to various campaigns.

The California Teachers Association, which formed a political fund 10 years ago, gave $392,592 in 1976.

Altogether, public workers contributed nearly $1.5 million in 1976, about 8 percent of the total spent by major donors and independent campaign committees.

But in the general election they were third behind business and agriculture in funds contributed.

All signs point to more activity — not less — by public employees in the 1978 campaigns.

Public worker organizations also spent sizable amounts lobbying state government. Altogether, labor and public employee groups spent $3.7 million, or 9.2 percent of the total in the latest two-year legislative session, ending in 1978.

That compares with the $17.8 million spent by business, including insurance and financial institutions, and $4.3 million spent by local governments other than school boards.

The California State Employees Association was the sixth biggest spender of all with $601,721, while the CTA was 14th with $376,290.

The League of California Cities and the County Supervisors Association of California, which line up opposite public employees on a number of issues, were 12th and 17th.

What that money gets public employees is at least the ear of public officials, although it doesn't guarantee success, legislators and their aides say. "I think it makes legislators aware of them certainly," said Sen. Albert Rodda, a Sacramento Democrat who has carried legislation backed by public employees but opposed some of their more ambitious goals.

"There has been an enhancement of the political influence of public employee organizations. But I don't think their influence is of such a nature that they control the process."

"Sometimes they compete with each other, which diminishes the total impact." Assemblyman Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, says public employees have "a voice" in Sacramento. But their influence was weakened by public reaction to the 1975 strike by San Francisco police and firemen, he adds.

"That very definitely changed the attitude of people toward public employees," he said. "I think most legislators want to see a good, efficient workforce that delivers service to people.

"But we're also aware that there are limits on how much we can spend. We can't give away the store."

Despite their generous campaign contributing, the record of public employees groups in the Legislature in recent years is a mixed bag.

School employees and state civil servants managed to get limited collective bargaining bills enacted, but broader legislation covering more government workers and granting the right to strike was killed.

Courts have ruled public employee strikes illegal because state law does not provide for them.

Also blocked was a measure providing binding arbitration for contract disputes involving police and firemen.

The salaries of some judges and University of California medical school professors have soared past the governor's $49,100 annual salary, which was ranked 896th among state employees in a recent survey.

On the average, pay boosts in recent years have generally matched those in private business or industry, although state employee leaders say the pay for some state workers still lags behind their private industry counterparts. California taxpayers face the problem of public pension funds with obligations that far out run current assets, but pensions of most government retirees are not lavish. Many get $300 to $400 or less a month.

Kirk West, executive vice president of the California Taxpayers' Association, believes public employee political clout reached a peak in 1974-75
